Carmel Snow, who changed the course of our culture by launching the careers of some of today's greatest figures in fashion and the arts, was one of the most extraordinary women of the twentieth century. As Editor in Chief of Harper's Bazaar from 1934 to 1958, she championed the concept of a well-dressed magazine for the well-dressed mind, bringing cutting-edge art, fiction, photography, and reportage into the American home. Now comes a dash of daring—a first and definitive biography of this larger-than-life figure in publishing, art, and letters. Veteran magazine journalist Penelope Rowlands describes the remarkable places Snow frequented and the people whose lives she transformed. Among them: Richard Avedon, Diana Vreeland, Geoffrey Beene, Henri Cartier-Bresson, Cristóbal Balenciaga, Lauren Bacall, and Truman Capote. She chronicles Snow's life on both sides of the Atlantic, beginning in nineteenth-century Ireland and continuing to Paris, Milan, and New York City—the fashion capitals of the world. Snow was the daughter of an Irish immigrant who was herself a forward-thinking businesswoman and who worked in her mother's custom dressmaking shop before being discovered by the magazine publisher Conde Nast and training under Edna Woolman Chase, the famous longtime editor of Vogue. From there, it was on to Harper's Bazaar, which, with the help of such key employees as Avedon, Vreeland, and Art Director Alexei Brodovitch, Snow turned into the most admired magazine of the century among the disparate talents who worked at Bazaar in the Snow era were Andy Warhol, the heiress Doris Duke, Maeve Brennan, and members of the storied Algonquin Round Table, overflowing with previously untold stories of the colorful and glamorous. A Dash of Daring is a compelling portrait of the fashion world during a golden era—one of Essence's 10 books we're dying to toss into our summer totes from sneakers to leather jackets, a bold witty and deeply personal dive into Black America's closet in this highly engaging book. Fashionista and pop culture expert Tanisha C. Ford investigates Afros and dashikis, go-go boots and hotpants of the Sixties, hip hop's baggy jeans and bamboo earrings, and the Black Lives Matter inspired hoodies of today. The history of these garments is deeply intertwined with Ford's story as a black girl coming of age in a Midwestern rust belt city. She experimented with the Jheri Curl, discovered how wearing the wrong color tennis shoes at the roller rink during the drug and gang wars of the 1980s could get you beaten and rocked oversized brightly colored jeans and Timberlands at an elite boarding school where the white upper crust wore conservative wool shift dresses dressed in dreams is a story of desire, access, conformity, and black innovation that explains things like the importance of knockoff culture, the role of Ghetto fabulous full-length furs and colorful leathers in the 1990s, how black girls make magic out of a dollar store t-shirt, rhinestones, and airbrushed paint, and black parents' emphasis on dressing nice. Ford talks about the pain of seeing black style appropriated by the mainstream fashion industry and fashion's power especially in middle America in this richly evocative narrative she shares her lifelong fashion revolution from figuring out her own personal style to discovering what makes Midwestern fashion a real thing. Too stylish, premium cover design 8.5x11 letter size, 120 pages including a daily schedule for organizing and planning, great for school work home and gifts. femininity by examining the lives of a wide range of women from queens to courtiers, farmers' wives, and servants uncovering their lost voices and experiences. It reorients discussions about female foundation garments in English and wider European history, arguing that these objects of material culture began to shape and define changing notions of the feminine, bodily ideal, social status, sexuality, and modesty in the early modern period, influencing enduring Western notions of femininity. Beautifully illustrated in full colour throughout, shaping femininity is the first large-scale exploration of the materiality, production, consumption, and meanings of women's foundation garments in sixteenth and seventeenth-century England. It offers a fascinating insight into dress and fashion in the early modern period and offers much of value to all those interested in the history of early modern women and gender, material culture, and consumption and the history of the body, as well as curators and reconstructors.
