The Urdu Ghazal 2020-01-02

The Urdu Ghazal presents the unique flowering of the ghazal as a byproduct of India's composite culture. It explores a variety of influences on the ghazal, including Sufism, Bhakti movement, and the infusion of Rekhta and Persian languages and culture. The book elucidates classical ghazal forms that blossomed from the seeds sown by Amir Khusrau in the fourteenth century to achieve great heights of literary excellence during the next 300 years. Notably, in the works of great poets like Mir and Ghalib, it also illustrates different socio-political and cultural demands of changing times. Primarily, how the ghazal provided new creative models to deal with literary movements like progressivism, modernism, and postmodernism through works of pioneering twentieth-century poets like Faiz Ahmed Faiz, Gulzar, and Javed Akhtar.

The main subject under discussion in this book is development of Urdu language and literature under the shadow of the British in India. The writers hope is that it will throw fresh light on the subject and facilitate more understanding for the Western readers. It is not a comprehensive survey although it deals with individual thinkers and their contribution to Urdu literature between modernism and orthodoxy.

I too have some dreams explores the work of N.M. Rashed, Urdu's renowned modernist poet whose career spans the last years of British India and the early decades of postcolonial South Asia. A Sean Pue argues that Rashed's poetry carved out a distinct role for literature in the maintenance of doubt, providing a platform for challenging the certainty of collective ideologies and opposing the evolving forms of empire and domination. This finely crafted study offers a timely contribution to global modernist studies and to modern South Asian literary history.

dreams that come true hurt us most in future people are not afraid to go to hell because they ve already been through a hell here a preacher tries to put fear of graves in their hearts in graphic detail but they mock him nothing new they are so used to it visceral fear in real life the story of a boy who grapples with the death of his father he tries to find the answers in the life passed in his village in the soft light of the night and the brutal sunlight of the day it is not only the loss of childhood dreams but also the language spoken in them slowly and surely he watches a ghetto surreptitiously encroaching upon his family and community there a bird refuses to recognize another bird exiled there with the same seasons now ruthless and relentlessly painful he confuses the cries of the birds with the cries of the children it s just not the fear for himself but the fear for generations to come what will happen to them people have a different criterion for buying homes there they look for a place where they will not be attacked at night
