a great book of poetry it hits on all levels once you start reading it you will not want to put it down. great storytelling deep meaning passion emotional prophetic and wisdom a book of poetry that you will not forget. know and learn what the crab syndrome is all about. what is the crab syndrome? the crab mentality describes a way of thinking best described by the phrase if i can t have it neither can you. the metaphor refers to a pot of crabs in which one tries to escape over the side but is relentlessly pulled down by the others in the pot. this term is broadly associated with short-sighted nonconstructive thinking rather than a unified long term constructive mentality. it is also often used colloquially in reference to individuals or communities attempting to escape a so-called underprivileged life but kept from doing so by those others of the same community or nation attempting to ride upon their coat tails. an abnormal dysfunctional retardation disorder that a community does not help or support or give assistance to someone of their own community who is trying to strive to purposely hinder ones ability to succeed. referring to a community or group of people resembling crabs in a bucket that when one tries to leave the other crabs pull them back down that if a person tries to excel in life their community does not help them and prevents them from excelling or leaving the neighborhood or community describes a way of thinking best described by the phrase if i can t have it neither can you. wikipedia definition: crab mentality sometimes referred to as crabs in the bucket describes a way of thinking best described by the phrase if i can t have it neither can you. the metaphor refers to a pot of crabs individually the crabs could easily escape from the pot but instead they grab at each other in a useless king of the hill competition or sabotage which prevents any from escaping and ensures their collective demise. the analogy in human behavior is that of a group that will attempt to pull down negate or diminish the importance of any member who achieves success beyond the others out of envy conspiracy or competitive feelings. if you are looking for great poetry this is the book. the poems in this collection blend metaphor and imagery of the Oregon coast to provide a rumination on tide pools the rocky shoreline coastal storms and the sensation of experiencing the wilderness of the Pacific shore. could a Christian legitimately be compared to a sand crab? Sandy Haney would say yes for several reasons: sand crabs spend much of their time near the shore where the crashing waves are relentless while sand crabs only move backward they keep looking forward and finally sand crabs burrow into the sand to prevent being washed away by powerful waves but hold on to the shore until the end. Sandy Haney s sand crab sentiments is a collection of inspirational poetry that will encourage even the weariest Christian to keep looking forward and endure to the end. Sandy s passion for the Lord and his word is evident in her poems about life death love happiness and everything in between. She has been used as god s pen to bring hope to the hopeless and strength to the weak. Sand crab sentiments includes uplifting poems for any situation you may find yourself in whether delightful or dismal droll or deep. Immerse yourself in these sand crab sentiments and you ll soon realize that this crustacean s perspective is one to emulate. Crab Winkle is a warped shepherd s calendar for the age of climate change. The well the key the pen imitation Crab examines the ever blurring boundary between the genuine and the fake in the 21st century where reality TV shows are scripted and memoirs sometimes turn out to be completely made up, this confusion bleeds beyond pop culture into our everyday lives where it has become increasingly difficult to differentiate performance from authentic experience. Truth is a slippery concept as the title poem suggests: the truth is what we make from the mess we inherit and might be as phony as monopoly money or a cheap replica in a museum gift shop. In this virtuosic debut, Vagnino deftly crafts poems in a variety of traditional forms but gives them a contemporary edge through her use of idiomatic language and wry humor. For example, junk mail ghazal is a ghazal, a Persian form comprised of spam email subject lines.

Thematically, the book pays particular attention to the roles women play and how the societal constructs of gender can be damaging. Vagnino focuses on the consequences women face when they transgress from the identities and labels they have been prescribed—i.e., mother, wife, daughter. These transgressions include sexual desire, aging women at forty, and ambivalence toward marriage and motherhood. For a poet invested in witty interrogations of artifice, Vagnino surprises with observations on love and loss that are tender, sincere, and funny. How to explain death to your daughter imagines how a parent might explain the unexplainable to a child by telling her that death is necessary as natural as sugar dissolving in a glass of lemonade.

Leaving its essence to linger, the poem was featured on public transit in the Twin Cities as one of the winning selections from the Saint Paul Almanac's Impressions contest in 2017. In Vera vs the Butterflies, Vladimir Nabokov's widow Vera struggles after his death to determine what to do with the butterflies they collected together. She ultimately decides to kill them mercifully so they can be reunited with her husband whom she thinks will be delighted at the sudden flutter of company. Butterflies are just one of many small creatures ennobled in Vagnino's verse. Oysters, weasels, fireflies, and countless other bugs and birds inhabit these poems. Vagnino grew up in Missouri, attended school on the East Coast, and now lives in Minnesota. All three regions are colorfully brought to life in Imitation Crab, which takes the reader from the freak show at Coney Island to the swamps of Oxford, Mississippi to the northwoods underbrush.

Vagnino is not afraid to get a little weird in some of these poems. Banality shifts abruptly into absurdity and strangeness erupts unexpectedly as in the realm of dreams. Dreams are the passageway between the real and the surreal which she explores in poems like your dreams explained where flying is a sign of a lover's betrayal. Vagnino considers how the stories we tell about ourselves often exist somewhere in between truth and fiction. In the refrain of Imitation Crab, she ponders the futility of learning to spot a fake and in the final couplet seems to suggest that it's a pointless endeavor. With practice, you can tell the real from the fake, but unless you're the crab, what difference does it make? However, by the end of the book, it's clear that it makes a tremendous difference for the crab and for the rest of us striving to live as authentically as we can. These poems banish suffering and translate it into beauty. Vagnino plays with the themes of holiness in nature, contentment, and simplicity. She celebrates the sacredness of water and the divine feminine.

The crab syndrome describes a way of thinking best described by the phrase if I can't have it, neither can you. The metaphor refers to a pot of crabs in which one tries to escape over the side but is relentlessly pulled down by the others in the pot. Searching Sand Crabs in the Dark recounts a journey inward, a spiral down of someone who has spent a career meeting the challenges of global chaos in the service of the government and private sector. Terry's experience of joy, loss, pain, and celebration captured in the poems is anchored in centering prayer and meditation. She brings the no space of pre-utterance to the surface in the rhythm, color, and harmony of verse to form a portal back into the soul.

These poems brood over financial as well as environmental upheaval while honest about the challenges we face. Mary Callan, born in York and raised in the Yorkshire family, offers hope for the future. Her poems are about cancer, the beauty of nature, and the resilience of the human spirit.

you to walk in to our beautiful readers these poems were written by my mother judith rose over a period of about 20 years she didn't share them and we didn't read them ourselves until after her death in 1999 it took a long time for me to embrace her words because there is so very much of her in every poem they range from happy high school memories to simple little flowers budding for the first time or tiny little crabs trying to navigate the ocean tide it was how my mother saw the world in all of its glory and sadness my hope is that as you read each poem you are moved and begin to also notice the small things that encompass your world and embrace them with love and understanding the way my mother did thank you for helping to keep her precious memories alive and in doing so judith rose will continue on with love lisa green celebrate the north fork with a

It is a collection of boldly illustrated humorous and often poignant poems featuring familiar animals. A great read to me, book. It appeals to children of all ages. Those in middle childhood will especially relate to the themes explored and will be able to read it themselves.

The Crab Syndrome 2014-12-17

A great book of poetry. It hits on all levels. Once you start reading it, you will not want to put it down. Great storytelling deep meaning passion emotional, prophetic and wisdom. A book of poetry that you will not forget. Know and learn what the crab syndrome is all about. What is the crab syndrome? The crab mentality describes a way of thinking. Best described by the phrase if I can't have it, neither can you. The metaphor refers to a pot of crabs in which one tries to escape over the side, but is relentlessly pulled down by the others in the pot. This term is broadly associated with short sighted nonconstructive thinking rather than a unified, long term constructive mentality. It is also often used colloquially in reference to individuals or communities attempting to escape a so-called underprivileged life but kept from doing so by those others of the same community or nation attempting to ride upon their coat tails. 2 An abnormal dysfunctional retardation disorder that a community does not help or support or give assistance to someone of their own community who is trying to strive to purposely hinder ones ability to succeed. 3 Referring to a community or group of people resembling crabs in a bucket that when one tries to leave the other crabs pull them back down. 4 This phrase if I can't have it, neither can you. Wikipedia definition: Crab mentality sometimes referred to as crabs in the bucket describes a way of thinking best described by the phrase if I can't have it, neither can you. The metaphor refers to a pot of crabs individually the crabs could easily escape from the pot but instead they grab at each other in a useless king of the hill competition or sabotage which prevents any from escaping and ensures their collective demise. The analogy in human behavior is that of a group that will attempt to pull down negate or diminish the importance of any member who achieves success beyond the others out of envy, conspiracy, or competitive feelings. If you are looking for great poetry, this is the book.

to our beautiful readers these poems were written by my mother judith rose over a period of about 20 years she didn't share them and we didn't read them ourselves until after her death in 1999 it took a long time for me to embrace her words because there is so very much of her in every poem they range from happy high school memories to simple little flowers budding for the first time or tiny little crabs trying to navigate the ocean tide it was how my mother saw the world in all of its glory and sadness my hope is that as you read each poem you are moved and begin to also notice the small things that encompass your world and embrace them with love and understanding the way my mother did thank you for helping to keep her precious memories alive and in doing so judith rose will continue on with love lisa green
