jameela jamil actress and host of i weigh journalist rina raphael looks at the explosion of the wellness industry how it stems from legitimate complaints how seductive marketing targets hopeful consumers and why women are opening up their wallets like never before wellness promises women the one thing they desperately desire control women are pursuing their health like never before whether it s juicing biohacking clutching crystals or sipping collagen today there is something for everyone as the wellness industry has grown from modest roots into a 4 4 trillion entity and a full blown movement promising health and vitality in the most fashionable package but why suddenly are we all feeling so unwell the truth is that deep within the underbelly of self care hidden beneath layers of clever marketing wellness beckons with a far stronger more seductive message than health alone it promises women the one thing they desperately desire control vividly told and deeply reported the gospel of wellness reveals how this obsession is a direct result of women feeling dismissed mistreated and overburdened women are told they can manage the chaos ruling their life by following a laid out plan eat right exercise meditate then buy or do all this stuff and while wellness may have sprung from good intentions we are now relentlessly flooded with exploitative offerings questionable ideas and a mounting pressure to stay devoted to the divine doctrine of wellness what happens when the cure becomes as bad as the disease with a critical eye humor and empathy wellness industry journalist rina raphael examines how women have been led down a kale covered path promising nothing short of salvation she knows raphael was once a disciple herself trying everything from clean eating American Places

More than two dozen of America’s most gifted historians write about their encounters with historic places, bringing a personal viewpoint to bear on a wide variety of sites ranging from Monticello to Fenway Park.

James M. McPherson writes about the battlefield of Gettysburg and how walking the ground of Pickett’s Charge inspired one of his books.

Kevin Starr visits the Musso Frank Grill in Hollywood and finds many of the flavors of California history there.

Joel Williamson takes a bemused tour of Elvis Presley’s Graceland.

David Kennedy tells the story of the Pig War on San Juan Island where a spat between Britain and America over a speck of land in the Pacific Northwest helped determine the shape of the U.S. and Canada.

William Freehling compares two places: Charleston’s Battery and New Orleans’ Jackson Square showing how each reveals the different spirit of the society that created it.

Edward Ayers talks about spending time in cyberspace.

Robert Dallek on the FDR Memorial.

David Hackett Fischer on the Boston Common.

William Leuchtenburg on his native borough of Queens.

Quentin G. Gage, editor of American Places, celebrates the career of Sheldon Meyer who, over his years at Oxford University Press, has published some of America’s most distinguished historians including many Pulitzer Prize and Bancroft Prize winners.

Virtually all of whom have contributed to this volume in recent years.

John Bellamy Foster has emerged as a leading theorist of the Marxist perspective on ecology. His seminal book, Marx’s Ecology, monthly review press 2000, discusses the place of ecological issues within the intellectual history of Marxism and on the philosophical foundations of a Marxist ecology and has become a major point of reference in ecological debates.

This historical and philosophical focus is now supplemented by more directly political engagement in his new book, Ecology Against Capitalism, in a broad ranging treatment of contemporary ecological politics. Foster deals with such issues as pollution, sustainable development, technological responses to environmental crisis, population growth, soil fertility, the preservation of ancient forests, and the new economy of the Internet age.

Foster’s introduction sets out the unifying themes of these essays enabling the reader to draw from them a consolidated approach to a rapidly expanding field of debate which is of critical importance in our time.

In these debates on the politics of ecology, Foster’s work develops an important and distinctive perspective where many of these debates assume a basic divergence of red and green issues and are concerned with the exact terms of a trade-off between them.

Foster argues that Marxism properly understood already provides the framework within which ecological questions are best approached. This perspective is advanced here in accessible and concrete form, taking account of the major positions in contemporary ecological debate.
