The Charismatic Bond 1991 prophecy is a major theme both in scripture and in church doctrine however prophecy is seen by many as an ancient biblical phenomenon which is now redundant there is conversely a form of prophecy that is very much alive in the pentecostal charismatic wing of the church although the pentecostal charismatic tradition is billed as the fastest growing movement in church history it has received scant attention in pentecostal studies in terms of its focus on charismatic prophecy this book is an attempt to explore the notion of charisms of the holy spirit it examines from an empirical theological perspective the nature and significance of the phenomenon of charismatic prophecy as reportedly manifested in pentecostal charismatic liturgical settings in an african context

Charismatic Leadership in Singapore 2012-01-14 seminar paper from the year 2004 in the subject business economics personnel and organisation grade 1 a university of st gallen institute for leadership and personal management language english abstract by analyzing personal interviews this term paper attempts to grasp the property of what is commonly known as charisma and to explain its virtues and effects especially with regards to business and leadership firstly a definition of charisma and a description of what is commonly understood by the term charisma are given this appears to be very difficult because there are so many different meanings and explanations around there are psychoanalytical explanations that root in the freudian theory charisma is a regressive phenomenon the relationship of a follower to his leader is like that of a five year old to his father sociological explanations humans need to have simple explanations for the complexity of today s world so they cling to a leader and attribution based explanations either based on salience and results or on leader behaviour but all those explanations have in common that they understand charisma as a concept very much linked to perception therefore charisma is not a single personality type but something more complex we each experience the world differently and as a result we may interpret the actions of others differently the specific character of a leader has to be seen by followers as relevant to their situation if followers do not think their leader’s formulation of a strategic vision matches their own aspiration they re less likely to perceive him or her as a charismatic leader also a person may form a charismatic leader in one specific situation setting and surrounding but not in another there are very many different kinds of charisma depending on the kind of leader and especially on the state of the followers one point that might illustrate how different the perceptions of charisma might be is the as Tongues of the Spirit 1999 a noteworthy theology of the holy spirit that challenges current scholarship in the field how might a distinctively pentecostal and charismatic theological perspective inform and enrich the discourse of academic practical theology in order to address that question mark cartledge in this book probes the relationship between scripture experience and the holy spirit by means of the concept of mediation that is how the divine is experienced in the world an expert in both pentecostal theology and practical theology cartledge offers a unique intervention into practical theology through the lens of the holy spirit he presents an original reading of pentecost and the spirit reception texts in the book of acts and engages with current literature in both pentecostal studies and practical theology further cartledge places his whole discussion within a broader protestant theological framework and he interrogates an existing congregational study to provide a real life example of theological intervention Testimony in the Spirit 2016-04-01 this book explores the ordinary beliefs and practices of pentecostal and charismatic christians in relation to the holy spirit it does this by means of a congregational study of a classical pentecostal church in the uk using participant observation focus groups and documentary and media analysis this approach develops a framework in which the narratives of informants can be interpreted focusing on specific areas of interest such as worship conversion healing and witness each contribution from respondents is situated within the context of the congregation and interpreted by means of the broader christian tradition this book makes a unique contribution to scholarship by offering a rich and varied picture of contemporary christians in the pentecostal and charismatic traditions enabling a greater understanding to

The Mediation of the Spirit 2015-07-08 andrt drogers is professor emeritus of cultural anthropology at vu university amsterdam Testimony in the Spirit 2016-04-01 the notion of prophecy is a leitmotiv both in scripture and in the church however the popular form of prophecy that is witnessed in the church today is the charismatic prophecy manifestations in the pentecostal charismatic movement although the latter is now billed as the fastest growing christian movement in church history and has brought to the fore the biblical notion of the charisms of the holy spirit the subject of charismatic prophecy has received limited attention in pentecostal studies there is therefore a gap in knowledge the present study is an attempt to address the lacuna it is an empirical biblical investigation of the nature and significance of prophecy in the pentecostal charismatic experience the study presents a particular thesis that charismatic prophecy as observed in pentecostal charismatic congregational settings in the african context is sacramental in its nature and parakletic in its functional significance thus the charismatic prophecy experience is viewed as an intense moment of a participatory interface between the divine spirit and the human spirit in which the divine spirit infuses the human conscious dimension with revelatory impulses the experience is parakletic in the sense that it edifies encourages and comforts the church in congregational settings

Religion: Empirical Studies 2017-03-02 doctoral thesis dissertation from the year 2018 in the subject leadership and human resource management management styles grade 4 1 university of kelaniya language english abstract the objective of the study is to explore the specific charismatic behavioural characteristics in leaders of virtual teams the charismatic leadership model developed by conger and kanungo 1988 is the main theoretical framework for building this research argument the sri lankan bpo sector was selected as the study setting and its virtuality was primarily tested using the virtuality index the study is a mixed method research study and followed a sequential exploratory mixed method design the quantitative data was collected by a survey method using c k scale and qualitative data collection was based on in depth interviews and focused group discussions based on the questionnaire draws from the c k scale factor analysis was employed to capture the behavioural characteristics of virtual charismatic leaders furthermore the study found that charismatic leadership behaviours were present in the team leaders in bpo companies the factor analysis created a new array of factors to describe the charismatic leadership behaviours in a virtual context the major contribution emphasized a new set of charismatic leadership behaviours present in leaders of virtual teams. A new model of virtual charismatic leadership was developed including seven behavioural characteristics by comparing the charismatic behaviours of the Conger and Kanungo model and the proposed model. It was able to discover three behaviours that are unique to the virtual setting to put forward the originality of the study. They are building trust in followers, adaptive behaviour, and dealing with diversity. This study added new dimensions to charismatic leadership and can be seen as an extension to the existing model of charismatic leadership of Conger and Kanungo. Next, a detailed behavioural profile of virtual charismatic leaders was developed in addition to a concise conceptualization of virtual charismatic leadership. It was also given to enrich the literature on leadership. The contribution to the knowledge and the implications were also elaborated followed by future research directions.

Extending the Charismatic, Ideological, and Pragmatic Approach to Leadership

2020-04-21 the response of pentecostal and charismatic churches to those suffering in their midst has generally been to seek the intervention of the holy spirit to bring about healing and transformation or perhaps education. But what happens when the suffering continues? It appears to be innocent and meaningless, and god seems to be absent. This study drawing on kevin vanhoozer's dramatic approach to theology argues that the way god calls us to perform as we seek to communicate with him amidst such situations is to lament and to do so with the aid of the holy spirit rather than offering such an approach purely in opposition to the more triumphalistic responses common in pentecostal charismatic theology and practice. This book seeks to show how a performance of lament is conducive to such theology and practice while acting as a much needed corrective to certain aspects of it. What is provided here is therefore relevant reading for both scholars and pastors alike particularly of pentecostal charismatic church tradition who grapple with the realities of suffering and the questions such realities produce.
