This is the story of a company built on the belief that with passion anything is possible, as they say at Mainfreight, go anywhere as long as it is forward. particularly in the Middle East. It argues that while demonization's origins are religious, its continued presence is fundamentally political. Drawing upon examples from historical and modern conflicts, this work addresses two key questions: why do leaders demonize enemies when waging war and what are the lasting impacts on peacemaking? In providing answers to these inquiries, the author applies historical insight to twenty-first century conflict. Specific attention is given to Israel and Palestine as the author argues that war time demonization in policy, media, and art is a psychological and relational barrier during peace talks. Beginning with the very basics of technical analysis and market price behaviour, this book teaches you how to apply these concepts and principles to your own trading with this comprehensive and straight-talking guide you will soon be using the same successful techniques and formulas as the professionals. Learn how to understand those trading systems that will generate high returns. Identify price patterns and trends using the right technical indicators to get the best out of the markets. Write and execute a trading plan that increases your chances of beating the market. This book introduces a study of ethics and values to develop a deeper understanding of markets, business, and economic life. Its distinctive feature is its thorough integration across personal and institutional perspectives across applied ethics and political philosophy and across philosophy, business, and Economics. Part 1 studies markets, property rights, and law and introduces normative theories with many applications. Part 2 examines the purpose of corporations and their responsibilities. Parts 3 and 4 analyze business and economic life through the ethics and values of welfare, and efficiency. Liberty rights, equality, Desert, personal character, community, and the common good. This second edition maintains the strengths of the first edition. Short, digestible chapters and engaging writing that explains challenging ideas clearly. The material is user-friendly with an emphasis on a strong theoretical core easily adaptable to the instructor's teaching.
The chapters are separable and can be shaped to the interests of the instructor with suggested course outlines and flexible application to case studies. This text is designed both for coursework in business ethics as well as interdisciplinary programs in philosophy, politics, economics, and law. This second edition revises presentation of eight normative theories with increased emphasis on linkages between business and economic life. It incorporates recent scholarship in shareholder stakeholder debates about the purpose of corporations. Bringing this important topic up-to-date, it includes a new streamlined preface that provides a quick overview of the book before smoothly guiding the reader to the first chapter. It uses updated examples and applications. A useful appendix including enhancing the popular primer on ethics includes key terms, discussion questions, biographies, and lists of further readings at the end of each chapter includes a new ending chapter on the value of an ethical life. This ambitious and wide-ranging essay collection analyses how identity and form intersect in twentieth and twenty-first century literature. It revises and deconstructs the binary oppositions: identity and form, content form and body mind through discussions of the role of the author in the interpretation of literary texts. The ways in which writers bypass or embrace identity politics and the function of identity and the body in form essays tackle these issues from a number of positions including identity categories such as disability, gender race, and sexuality. As well as questioning these categories themselves, essayists look at both identity as form and form as identity. Although identity and form are both staples of current research on contemporary literature, they rarely meet in the way this collection allows. Authors studied include Beryl Bainbridge, Samuel Beckett, John Berrymann, Brigidea Brophy, Angela Carter, J.M. Coetzee, Anne Enright, William Faulkner, Mark Haddon, Ted Hughes, Kazuo Ishiguro, B.S. Johnson, Toby Litt, Hilary Mantel, Andrea Levy, Robert Lowell, Ian McEwan, Flannery O'Connor, Alice Oswald, Sylvia Plath, Jeremy Reed, Anne Sexton, Edith Sitwell, Wallace Stevens, Jeremy Reed, Jeanette Winterson, and Virginia Woolf. The book engages with key theoretical approaches to twentieth and twenty-first century literature of the last twenty years while at the same time advancing new frameworks that enable readers to reconsider the identity and form conundrum in both its choice of texts and diverse approaches. It will be of interest to those working in English and American literatures, gender studies, queer studies, disability studies, postcolonial literature, and philosophy. The Marrakesh Treaty to facilitate access Steven Fake and Kevin Funk reveal the myriad ways in which the West has failed Darfur, eschewing liberal fantasies of Western benevolence, fake and Funk unmask the hard reality behind humanitarian intervention advocacy, painting a disturbing portrait of Washington's past and present relations with some of the worst elements in power in Khartoum.

Book jacket reports on a new generation of internet controls that establish a new normative terrain in which surveillance and censorship are routine internet filtering, censorship of content, and online surveillance are increasing in scale, scope, and sophistication around the world. In democratic countries as well as in authoritarian states, the first generation of Internet controls consisted largely of building firewalls at key Internet gateways. China's famous great firewall of China is one of the first national Internet filtering systems. Today, the new tools for Internet controls that are emerging go beyond mere denial of information. These new techniques, which aim to normalize or even legalize Internet control, include targeted viruses and the strategically timed deployment of distributed denial of service (DDoS) attacks. Surveillance at key points of the Internet's infrastructure, take down notices, stringent terms of use, policies, and national information shaping strategies access controlled reports. On this new normative terrain, the book presents a project from the OpenNet Initiative (ONI) collaboration of the Citizen Lab at the University of Toronto's Munk Centre for International Studies, Harvard's Berkman Center for Internet and Society, and the SecDev Group. The first part of the book examines the current state of the human rights obligations of foreign states and corporations. The second part is geared towards corporations and international financial institutions looking particularly at the ways in which they address questions of attribution and distribution of obligations and responsibility. The second part is geared towards the identification of common principles that may underpin a human rights legal regime that incorporates obligations of foreign states as well as of non-state actors.

The book explores potential applications of international human rights law in a multi-duty bearer setting. The first part of the book examines the current state of the human rights obligations of foreign states, corporations, and international financial institutions looking in particular at the ways in which they address questions of attribution and distribution of obligations and responsibility. The second part is geared towards the identification of common principles that may underpin a human rights legal regime that incorporates obligations of foreign states as well as of non-state actors.

This new volume updates the groundbreaking analysis of its first edition in 2002 when the EC common regulatory framework for electronic communications networks and services had just entered into force. So much has changed in the intervening years that this new edition bears little resemblance to its predecessor with every chapter either extensively altered or entirely new. It remains, however, the most detailed and comprehensive overview available of the application of the EC Treaty's competition rules in the markets for telecommunications and audiovisual media and of the applicable regulatory framework in thirteen chapters each contributed by one or more noted legal authorities in the field. telephony relevant ec media and communications law and relevant aspects of ec competition law are dealt with in detail while some chapters focus on competition law others deal primarily with sector affects their business as a detailed analysis of the basic legislative and regulatory framework of european telecommunications law it will be an invaluable reference work for lawyers judges regulators and policymakers in all the ec member states as well as for students and teachers of european law taking an interdisciplinary approach and based on yet unexplored sources this book offers a new synthesis of the theory and works of the dutch monk and architect dom hans van der laan from the perspective of the interrelationship between liturgy and architecture medical research and global awareness of health inequalities continue to grow apace why then is global health inequality widening with benefits disproportionally affecting the richest third how can obstacles to more equitable healthcare be overcome this passionately argued book presents answers that will be essential reading for everyone interested in global health public health public policy and economics policy makers in global communities and government political activists and all those with an interest in equality in healthcare will find stimulating well supported analyses of the interaction between neoliberal policies geopolitical issues and health meanwhile professionals in international healthcare organisations care agencies and international charities will find challenging and refreshing socio political solutions to those offered by the current neoliberal paradigm since the dawn of the space age small cohorts of humanity have broadcast signals towards other stars fabricated space time capsules to speak for earth aboard interstellar probes deposited collections of space oddities on other astronomical bodies and permanently incised the memory of our species across the deep time legacy of the sol system many of these purposeful messages are the consequence of age old behaviors traditions and material practices using modern aerospace technologies most attempt to preserve narratives of human experience in social exchange devices for imagined exotic audiences looking back upon this accumulative history of messaging from earth how do we begin to interpret such an eclectic portrait of earth for ourselves surveying and cataloguing the variety of these artifacts through a series of interdisciplinary essays and visual documentation this volume chronicles our changing relationships customs and assumptions made within this material culture for our own eyes what do these autobiographical accounts tell us about terrans and our minds set against the backdrop of our planetary history this paper discusses key findings of the third review under the stand by arrangement for georgia with monetary policy impaired by high dollarization the authorities response to the downturn relies mostly on fiscal stimulus the reduction of policy interest rates and ample liquidity injections have not led to a resumption of bank lending owing to balance sheet weaknesses and higher credit risk the authorities have thus decided to accommodate tax revenue losses in a higher deficit in 2009 the authorities have requested an augmentation of access and an extension of the arrangement through mid 2011 this book analyzes the tension between the host state s commitment to provide regulatory stability for foreign investors which is a tool for attracting fdi and generating economic growth and its evolving non economic commitments towards its citizens with regard to environmental protection and social welfare the main thesis is that the stabilization clause regulatory power antinomy as it appears in many cases contradicts the content and rationale of sustainable development a concept that is increasingly prevalent in national and international law and which aims at the integration and balancing of economic environmental and social development to reconcile this antinomy at the decision making and dispute settlement levels the book employs a constructive sustainable development approach which is based on the integration and reconciliation imperatives of the concept of sustainable development as well as on the application of principles of law such as non discrimination public purpose due process proportionality and more generally good governance and rule of law it subsequently re conceptualizes stabilization clauses in terms of their design ex ante and interpretation ex post yielding stability to the benefit of foreign investors while also mitigating their negative effects on the host state s power to regulate this simple guide provides valuable insights for transforming an out of date public school or academic library into a thriving user centric learning commons the goal of the learning commons strategy is to provide a centralized go to location for all users seeking help on the complex issues of teaching researching and being a global citizen in our changing world a library organized around the learning commons construct fosters collaborative work and social interaction between users during research and learning this paradigm also encourages use of innovative technologies and information resources transforming a traditional library into a thriving learning commons does take some planning and effort however each of the seven chapters in this book explains a simple step that a librarian can take to improve their facility photographs and concrete examples of the suggested strategies are included checklists at the end of each chapter serve as indicators for measuring progress this text is useful for library administrators in school settings both public and private k 12 as well as academic public and special libraries

The G20 data gaps initiative has called for the IMF to develop standard measures of tail risk, which we identify in this paper with systemic risk. To understand the conditions under which tail risk is present, it is first necessary to develop a measure of what constitutes a systemic stress or tail event. We develop such a measure and use it to assess the performance of eleven near-term systemic risk indicators as early warning of distress among top financial institutions in the United States and the euro area. Two indicators perform particularly well in both regions, and a couple of other simple indicators do well across a number of criteria. We also find that the sizes of institutions do not necessarily correspond with their contribution to spillover risk. Some practical guidance for policies is provided.

Education for All this ambitious and wide-ranging essay collection analyses how identity and form intersect in twentieth and twenty-first century literature. It revises and deconstructs the binary oppositions identity/form/content/form and body/mind through discussions of the role of the author in the interpretation of literary texts, the ways in which writers bypass or embrace identity politics, and the function of identity and the body in form. Essays tackle these issues from a number of positions, including identity categories such as disability, gender, race, and sexuality as well as questioning these categories themselves. Essayists look at both identity as form and form as identity, although identity and form are both staples of current research on contemporary literature. They rarely meet in the way this collection allows. Authors studied include Beryl Bainbridge, Samuel Beckett, John Berryman, Brigid Brophy, Angela Carter, J. M. Coetzee, Anne Enright, William Faulkner, Mark Haddon, Ted Hughes, Kazuo Ishiguro, B. S. Johnson, A. L. Kennedy, Toby Litt, Hilary Mantel, Andrea Levy, Robert Lowell, Ian McEwan, Flannery O'Connor, Alice Oswald, Sylvia Plath, Jeremy Reed, Anne Sexton, Edith Sitwell, Wallace Stevens, Jeremy Reed, Jeanette Winterson, and Virginia Woolf. The book engages with key theoretical approaches to twentieth and twenty-first century literature of the last twenty years while at the same time advancing new frameworks that enable readers to reconsider the identity and form conundrum in both its choice of texts and diverse approaches. It will be of interest to those working on English and American literatures, gender studies, queer studies, disability studies, postcolonial literature, and literature and philosophy.

Peacemaking and the extractive industries addresses a significant gap in research on the political and diplomatic role of multinational corporations in peace processes in intrastate conflict. Corporate peacemaking is addressed, with a particular focus on corporations in the oil and mining sectors supporting or participating in peace negotiations and mediation. The chapters explore national level peace processes as well as those at community and global levels. While the focus is on extractive companies, the findings are valuable to companies from all industries looking at peace-related processes. This ground-breaking book gives a comprehensive picture of how corporate peacemaking currently works, how it can be developed and implemented, and how it is likely to impact global governance and corporate culture in the future. The book demonstrates that corporate peacemaking has the potential to be a powerful element in international governance and peace efforts. Ralph shows through the business case that companies as well as communities will benefit. Ralph presents a new framework for corporate peace that will assist companies from all sectors in countries experiencing violent conflict in addition to instability, human rights abuses, and poor governance based on rigorous academic research with practical case studies it is essential reading for practitioners academics policy makers and ngos human rights have traditionally been framed in a vertical perspective with the duties of states confined to their own citizens or residents interpretations of international human rights treaties tend either to ignore or downplay obligations beyond this territorial space this edited volume challenges the territorial bias of mainstream human rights law it argues that with increased globalisation and the impact of international corporations organisations and non state actors human rights law will become less relevant if it fails to adapt to changing realities in which states are no longer the only leading actor bringing together leading scholars in the field the book explores potential applications of international human rights law in a multi duty bearer setting the first part of the book examines the current state of the human rights obligations of foreign states corporations and international financial institutions looking in particular at the ways in which they address questions of attribution and distribution of obligations and responsibility the second part is geared towards the identification of common principles that may underpin a human rights legal regime that incorporates obligations of foreign states as well as of non state actors as a marker of important progress in understanding what lies ahead for integrating foreign states and non state actors in the human rights dutybearer regime this book will be of great interest to scholars and practitioners of international human rights law public international law and international relations
