Revised and edited version of a dissertation presented to the Pontifical University of St. Thomas in Rome in October 1990. This volume contains commentary addressing many scripture topics concerned with the what, when, why, and how of God's redemptive plan. This collaborative commentary on or dictionary of Kings explores cross-cutting aspects of Kings, ranging from the analysis of its composition historically regarded to its transmission and reception. Ample attention is accorded sources, figures, and peoples who play a part in the book. The commentary deals with Kings' treatment in translation and role in later ancient literature. While our comments do not proceed verse by verse, the volume furnishes guidance from contributors highly qualified to advance contemporary discussion on the book's historical background, its literary intentions and characteristics, and on themes and motifs central to its understanding both of itself and of the world from which it arose. This volume functions as a meta-commentary offering windows into the secondary literature but assembling data more fully than is the case in individual commentaries. Textuality and the Bible represents a concerted effort to clarify the object of study in biblical scholarship and in the church by bringing together the disciplines of hermeneutics, compositional analysis, canon studies, and textual criticism. It ultimately seeks to issue a call for study of the Bible for its own sake. A daily Bible reader based on the GSN game show, readers are asked to read a section of the Bible, think on the lessons in that section, and answer questions about it. One in an ongoing series of esteemed and popular Bible commentary volumes based on the New International Version text, provides a discussion of introductory matters such as authorship, date, historical background, purpose, structure, and outline of the historical books of the Old Testament. Roy L. Heller looks at the prophets Elijah and Elisha in the books of Kings, charting a two-fold characterization that portrays these prophetic figures in both positive and negative lights in the narratives of Kings. Elijah and Elisha often parallel other prophetic figures from Israel's history they perform miraculous signs they speak in the name of God and they pronounce judgments upon the nation of Israel for its idolatrous worship there are however other stories which have troubled readers and scholars alike. Elijah's cowardly running from the threats of Jezebel his self-pitying complaint to God that he was the only true Israelite left and Elisha's cursing a group of little boys who in turn are slaughtered by two female bears scholars have traditionally ignored or belittled the negative stories of the prophets seeing them as either late additions to the biblical text or as minor unimportant stories that can easily be dismissed. Heller however argues that the dual characterization of Elijah and Elisha reflects an ambivalent attitude that the narrator of Kings has toward prophecy as a whole an attitude that is reflected in the book of Deuteronomy itself. This forces readers of the biblical text to pose the question how may Israel best know and follow God. The stories of Elijah and Elisha make the answer clear the words and lives of the prophets are a possible way for God to reveal how Israel is to live but those words and lives must always be considered with a degree of suspicion and must always be evaluated in light of the clear and straightforward teaching of Deuteronomy. This volume of thirty articles covering a wide range of subjects related to Old Testament study is written by colleagues, friends, and students of Graeme Auld to honour the occasion of his sixty-fifth birthday. It is a key theme in the Hebrew Bible’s theology of creation and salvation, along with associated themes such as justice, steadfast love, loyalty, truth, fidelity, compassion, mercy, sin, and disorder. Chaos. A number of studies of righteousness have been undertaken, but most have tended to focus on Israel’s call to be righteous as voiced in particular in the prophetic books and the Psalter. In contrast, this book focuses on divine righteousness as the basis for all other notions of righteousness as this is outlined in the foundational death waited for him in the jungle there was nothing else to find here no refuge no escape no safety or comfort this place offered none of those only a savage end to suffering and a blinding slip into eternity tong expected to die here and he welcomed it he would die a free man his knees no longer bent in slavery he ran barefoot and bleeding through the bloodshot wilderness yes he would die soon but not yet he would take more of their worthless lives with him this was why he fled the scene of his first murder and entered the poison wilderness it was not to save himself from the retribution of his oppressors he fled so they would chase him into this scarlet realm of death the dense jungle and its dangers gave him precious time time to steal the lives of the men who chased him he would survive just long enough to kill them all then he would give his life gladly to the jungle and its cruel mercy the storytellers of uurz say that man lived in the sea until the gods taught him to walk on land but giants were born whole from the great stones of the earth that is why the sea always draws men back to its maternal depths and why giants are stronger and more durable than men those same storytellers for the price of a copper or a bowl of fermented grape will speak of an era a thousand years ago when the land was ruled by serpents these monsters crawled among the hills and woodlands like colossal centipedes breathing fire and devouring all that lived once the lands about uurz were thick with forests these raconteurs will insist until the monsters burned the trees to dust leaving the land parched and barren get a copy
