Implementing Management Innovations

2012-12-06

Implementing management innovations lessons learned from activity based costing in the U.S. automobile industry is the result of a long term study of the implementation of activity based costing ABC inside two of America's largest automobile companies. The research advances our theoretical and practical understanding of the implementation of management innovations by tracing the evolution of ABC from the corporate level down to its eventual rollout at the plants. Another distinguishing feature of the study is the blend of field research methods and hypothesis testing to determine the factors that led to implementation success for managers and ABC development teams. Many of the findings of the study have implications for the implementation of other types of management innovations.

Chrysler's Turbine Car

2010-10-01

Offering a behind the scenes look into the world of automotive research and development in the 1960s, this engaging narrative traces the birth of Chrysler's alternative jet car and reveals the story behind its sudden and mysterious demise. Relying on extensive research and firsthand accounts from surviving members of the turbine car program including the metallurgist who created the exotic metals for the engine and the test driver who drove it at Chrysler's proving grounds, this chronicle documents the bold development of an automobile with a jet turbine engine in addition to running well on virtually any flammable liquid including kerosene, vodka, heating oil, and Chanel No. 5 perfume. The pioneering engines had one fifth the number of moving parts and required less maintenance than conventional engines despite the fleet's amazing performance over millions of miles by test drivers. Chrysler pulled the plug on the project and crushed almost all of the cars. The reasons behind the surprising end to the jet car fleet are finally explained here.
